RESEARCH ANALYST

Enthusiastic Academic Research Analyst with 4 years of experience in social sciences, focusing on educational equity and access. Skilled in both qualitative and quantitative research methodologies, I bring a unique perspective to data analysis that emphasizes social justice and community engagement. My background includes extensive work with diverse populations, utilizing participatory research methods to empower voices often overlooked in traditional academic settings.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Center for Social Justice Research

Mar 2018 - Present

Research Analyst

- Conducted qualitative interviews with marginalized communities to gather insights on educational barriers.
- Analyzed data trends using NVivo software to identify key themes in qualitative research.
- Collaborated with local organizations to implement community-based research initiatives.
- Presented research findings to policymakers, advocating for equitable funding for schools.
- Developed and maintained databases to track research progress and participant feedback.
- Organized community forums to share research insights and promote dialogue on educational access.

University of Michigan

Dec 2015 - Jan 2018

Research Assistant

- Assisted in a large-scale study on the impact of socio-economic status on educational outcomes.
- Performed data cleaning and preparation for analysis using Excel and SPSS.
- Supported the development of research instruments that effectively captured participant experiences.
- Participated in weekly team meetings to discuss research progress and findings.
- Contributed to the writing of grant proposals that secured funding for ongoing research.
- Helped organize academic conferences focused on educational equity and inclusion.

ACHIEVEMENTS

- Developed a research project that received state recognition for its contribution to educational equity.
- Presented findings at 3 national conferences, increasing awareness of educational disparities.
- Received the 'Emerging Scholar Award' for outstanding contributions to social justice research.
